Freedom of Speech Policy

Policy Context

1. As an institution of higher education, which sees academic freedom as central to its activity (including, in particular, critical independence and creativity), Queen Mary University of London (QMUL) is committed to promoting and encouraging free debate and enquiry. This means that we encourage a wide range of views, political as well as academic, which might entail the airing of opinions and ideas that are unpopular, controversial or provocative.
2. QMUL's policy on Freedom of Speech<sup>1</sup> is set within the context of our values, which were confirmed in consultation with staff and students through the development of the institution's new Strategy<sup>2</sup>. These values note that our activities are shaped and influenced by the following commitments:
  - Unequivocal adherence to our fundamental academic mission.
  - Acting with integrity and to the highest ethical standards.
  - Promoting a strong collegial community.
  - Promoting diversity and inclusiveness.
  - Supporting and engaging with our local community.
3. QMUL's Freedom of Speech policy and approach must also be seen in the context of our legal obligations and duties. The institution has an explicit duty in law<sup>3</sup> to take such steps as are reasonably practicable to ensure that freedom of expression within the law is secured for members, students, employees and visiting speakers. This duty includes in particular a responsibility to ensure that the use of QMUL premises is not denied to any individual or group on the grounds of the beliefs or views of that individual or any member of that group, or on the grounds of the policy or objectives of the group.
4. This does not mean, however, that the right to freedom of speech has no boundaries. A significant strand in the regulatory framework is the duty (under the Equality Act 2010) to promote good relations between persons of different racial groups. Freedom of speech must also take place in the context of laws<sup>4</sup> to protect national security and public safety; to protect vulnerable individuals from being drawn into extremism; for the prevention of disorder or crime; for the protection of the reputation or rights of others; and to prevent the disclosure of information received in confidence.

<sup>4</sup> The Policy is drafted with reference to the following legislation: The Education (No2) Act 1986, The Education Reform Act 1988, specifically section 43, The Human Rights Act 1998, specifically article 10, The Terrorism Act 2006, specifically section 1; The Counter-Terrorism and Security Act 2015, and the associated guidance for universities.

Implementation of the Policy

5. Activity at QMUL will be considered within the context of QMUL's values and the values of a democratic and inclusive society. We will wherever possible, practical and permissible within this Policy facilitate freedom of speech, scholarly enquiry and academic debate. In doing so we recognise these as fundamental and defining activities of a university and of QMUL in particular.
6. QMUL expects speakers and those taking part in activities to respect the values noted above, to be sensitive to the diversity of its community, and to show respect to all sections of that community. These precepts apply in particular to the way in which views are expressed and the form of activities.
7. In considering whether or not to permit its premises to be used for (or its name to be associated with) a particular activity, QMUL will apply a clear policy of freedom of speech within the law. In doing so, we will consider whether the views or ideas to be put forward or whether the activity in question:
  - Constitutes a criminal offence (and whether a participant has a previous conviction in relation to words either written or spoken).
  - Constitutes a threat to public order (including whether a participant is from an organisation that is officially proscribed by the UK Government)
  - Constitutes a threat to the health and safety of individuals attending the event or in the locality, which cannot be satisfactorily managed.
  - Incites others to commit criminal acts.
  - Is contrary to the civil and human rights of individuals.
8. The general rule is that QMUL would place a limit on freedom of speech and would not support or facilitate an event or activity only on the grounds indicated in Section 7 above.
9. Within this context it is important to note QMUL's legal duties, including those relating to preventing individuals from being drawn into extremism. As such, where events or activities might not fully trigger one of the clauses outlined in Section 7, but may still present some concerns in relation to these and other points, QMUL will consider mechanisms which be deployed to provide reassurance and safeguards.
10. These mechanisms are explained in more detail in QMUL's Events Policy, but can include requirements concerning the composition of a speaking panel or the Chair; the presence of university officers at events to ensure this policy is adhered to; and specifications in terms of groups that can attend events.
11. In noting the above, we recognise the long-standing role of universities as places for the questioning of dogma, the dissection of prejudice and the challenge of unfamiliar and uncomfortable ideas. As such, QMUL views freedom of thought and freedom of speech as an essential component of efforts to counter violent extremism.
