Programme outline

This degree programme is for students with a strong interest in the making of the world we live in today, although they will have the option to take some modules from earlier periods. In the first year students study introductory modules on Britain, Europe and America. They then select modules covering a broad spectrum of historical fields, from the history of foreign relations to the history of ideas. Teaching methods will reflect the richness and diversity of historical sources for the modern era, learning through lectures, film screenings, field trips and seminars.

Aims of the programme

The programme V140 Modern and Contemporary History as delivered by the School of History at Queen Mary, University of London aims:
to provide students with a thorough grounding in key aspects of modern and contemporary history;
to equip students to understand the unique problems of dealing with the challenges of recent and contemporary history;

to introduce students to, and encourage them to employ, a range of methodological approaches;
to expose students to political, cultural, religious, social and economic themes as appropriate drawn primarily from the School's strengths in British, European, Global and North American history;
to provide the opportunity for students to develop specialism in areas such as film history, cultural history, modern American history and contemporary British political history;
to encourage and support students to design their own coherent pathway of study drawing from units offered both within the School of History, by other Schools within the University and by other Schools of History within the University of London;
to equip students with the generic and transferable skills as defined in the History Benchmarks including self direction; independence of mind; ability to gather, organise and deploy evidence, data and information; structure, coherence, clarity and fluency of both oral and written expression; intellectual integrity.

What will you be expected to achieve?

Students who successfully complete this programme will be able to:

QMUL Model

The QMUL Model is an innovative teaching and learning initiative that will broaden opportunities for Queen Mary undergraduates within and beyond higher education, supporting them to plan and manage their ongoing professional development. The Model is firmly grounded in the core QMUL values of respect for, and engagement with, the local area and communities, with a distinctive focus on enabling students to make a positive societal impact through leadership in their chosen field. The Model is organised around the key themes of:

- networking
- multi- and inter-disciplinarity
- international perspectives
- enterprising perspectives.

Students are required to study QMUL Model modules to the value of at least 10 credits at each year of undergraduate study. Model modules may be 5, 10 or 15 credits. Model modules are indicated within this programme specification.

In your first year of study, the Model module will be core or compulsory and will be situated within your home School or Institute. In subsequent years, students will be strongly encouraged to study at least one Model module beyond their home discipline(s), which could, for example, be in another School / Institute or area of QMUL or undertaken as a module outside of QMUL.

If Model module information is not provided on this programme specification for all subsequent years of study, this will be identified as your studies continue.

Where a Model module elective can be selected from an approved group of Model modules, no guarantee can be provided that your first choice of Model module will be available.

How will you learn?

The programme is taught in accordance with the School's Teaching, Learning and Assessment Strategy. The broad aims of this strategy are:
 to foster a sense of community amongst students and staff in the pursuit of teaching and learning history;
 to promote the relationship between staff research, teaching and student learning;

Programme Title: BA (Hons) Modern and Contemporary History

to provide a flexible curriculum, supported by the intercollegiate system of the University of London which maximizes students' choice;

to expose students to a diverse set of approaches to the study of history and to a number of specialisms including interdisciplinary collaboration;

to encourage students to take responsibility for their own learning and progress and to develop qualities of self-discipline and self-direction;

to inspire intellectual independence in students;

to employ a variety of assessment methods and emphasize progression;

to prepare graduates for training and/or employment, or further academic study, through the acquisition of transferable skills;

Teaching takes a number of forms:

- Lectures
- Seminars
- Field Trips
- Individual supervision of projects and dissertations
- Individual feedback on written work including examinations

Learning is supported by:

- Coherently designed and effectively delivered modules
- Detailed bibliographies, providing guided reading for each module
- The provision of key materials, in libraries, in specified books or module packs
- Appropriate assessment exercises with each module
- Encouraging active participation by students in seminar discussions
- Encouraging students to reflect on historical methods through dedicated modules
- Review of individual student progress in conjunction with advisers

How will you be assessed?

Assessment is varied and takes a number of forms within the programme, closely related to the desired learning outcomes of each module within the programme.

Forms of assessment include:

- Essays (from 2,000 to 5,000 words as appropriate)
- Unseen examinations
- Dissertations (10,000 words)
- Gobbet work
- Project work
- Translation and editing exercises
- Book reviews
- Literature reviews
- Log books

Copies of the full Teaching and Learning Strategy including specific practices relating to teaching, learning and assessment can be obtained from the School of History.

How is the programme structured?

Please specify the full time and part time programme diets (if applicable). Please also outline the QMUL Model arrangements for each year of study. The description should be sufficiently detailed to fully define the structure of the diet.

Year 1

Students take modules with a cumulative value of 120 credits from a range of thematic and skills modules at level 4 in the School of History, including a compulsory skills and reflection module 'History in Practice' (20 credits), and other compulsory modules in modern history.

Compulsory modules:

- HST4621 History in Practice (20 credits)
- HST4321 Unravelling Britain: British History since 1801 (20 credits)
- HST4622 Global Encounters: Conquest and Culture in World History (20 credits)
- HST4322 Europe in a Global Context since 1800 (20 credits)

PLUS 40 credits of other level 4 HST modules

Year 2

Programme Title: BA (Hons) Modern and Contemporary History

Students take modules with a cumulative value of 120 credits from a wide range of modules, with a minimum of 90 credits at level 5 in the School of History. Module choices are made with the guidance of the student's academic adviser in History. The flexibility of the system enables students to design their own coherent pathway of study in accordance with their developing intellectual interests.

Compulsory modules:

HST5901 History Research Project (15 credits)

At the discretion of the School of History and with the permission of the host School/Department, students may take up to 30 of the 120 credits in another School within Queen Mary, providing these are at level 4 or 5, or another History Department within the University of London, providing these are at level 5 ("Group 2" in UoL terminology). All School of History modules must be taken at level 5.

Joint honours History students who have been permitted to transfer to single honours will follow the diet from Year 2, having taken History in Practice and either Unravelling Britain: British History since 1801 or Global Encounters: Conquest and Culture in World History from Year 1.

Year 3

Students take modules with a cumulative value of 120 credits, with a minimum of 90 credits at level 6 in the School of History if the Special Subject is in the School of History, or a minimum of 60 credits at level 6 in the School of History if the Special Subject is at another History Department within the University of London. Module choices are made with the guidance of the student's academic adviser in History.

60 credits must come from a Special Subject, either as a combination of a 30 credit Special Subject and the 30 credit HST6700 History Research Dissertation in the School of History, or as a 60 credit Special Subject which includes a dissertation ("Group 3" in UoL terminology) at another History Department within the University of London. The Special Subject requires independent research and extensive engagement with primary sources.

At the discretion of the School of History and with the permission of the host School, students may take up to 30 of the 120 credits in another School within Queen Mary, providing these are at level 5 or 6. All School of History modules must be taken at level 6.

What are the entry requirements?

The entry requirements are as stated in the Queen Mary prospectus for current entry, and on the Queen Mary website <http://www.qmul.ac.uk/undergraduate/coursefinder/index.html>

How will the quality of the programme be managed and enhanced?

Overall administrative responsibility and QMUL accountability for the programme rests with History. The Programme Convenor will be responsible for the academic content and quality of the programme and any changes to the curriculum, ensuring consistent quality of teaching across the programme.

The History undergraduate office is responsible for the overall administrative delivery of the programme, including any issues relating to registration, complaints, pastoral care, appeals, and award for the programme.

The overall management and enhancement of the programme lies with the Department of History's undergraduate Teaching and Learning Committee chaired by the Director of Taught Programmes.

How do we listen to and act on your feedback?

The Staff-Student Liaison Committee provides a formal means of communication and discussion between Schools and its students. The committee consists of student representatives from each year in the school/institute together with appropriate representation from staff within the school/institute. It is designed to respond to the needs of students, as well as act as a forum for discussing programme and module developments. Staff-Student Liaison Committees meet regularly throughout the year. The school operates a Learning and Teaching Committee, or equivalent, which advises the School/Institute Director of Taught Programmes on all matters relating to the delivery of taught programmes at school level including monitoring the application of relevant QM policies and reviewing all proposals for module and programme approval and amendment before submission to Taught Programmes Board. Student views are incorporated in this Committee's work in a number of ways, such as through student membership, or consideration of student surveys. The School operates an Annual Programme Review of their taught undergraduate and postgraduate provision. The process is normally organised at a School-level basis with the Head of School, or equivalent, responsible for the completion of the school's Annual Programme Reviews. Schools/institutes are required to produce a separate Annual Programme Review for undergraduate programmes and for postgraduate taught programmes using the relevant Undergraduate or Postgraduate Annual Programme Review pro-forma. Students' views are considered in this process through analysis of the NSS and module evaluations.

What academic support is available?

All students beginning to study on the programme participate in a series of Welcome Week activities, which involve introductions to the programme and specific inductions in the use of the online learning environment. These events also include opportunities for social interaction, and scheduled small group and individual meetings with personal advisers. Each student's academic progress and personal welfare is monitored by an adviser in each School with whom regular meetings are scheduled. Advisers are the designated members of staff with whom students can raise issues and problems and from whom they can seek advice and guidance. All teaching staff hold regular office hours in which students are actively encouraged to discuss their work and their progress. There is a dedicated Director of Student Support in the School who works with academic staff to assist students in need of support. Both the Director of Student Support and all advisers are able to refer students, where appropriate to the relevant professional service departments in the College, including Disability and Dyslexia, Welfare, and Counselling. A dedicated post of E-Learning Manager supports students in their use of online learning environments used on all modules. The School of History collaborates with the College's Thinking Writing team and Language Learning unit to support students in the development of their writing skills. Additional support is regularly provided by professional writers working in the College as Royal Literary Fund Fellows.

Programme-specific rules and facts

None

Specific support for disabled students

All staff in the School of History are required to integrate School principles on equality, diversity and inclusion into the design and planning of teaching modules. This is organised primarily through 'Reflective Practice' guidelines, which were developed in 2018-19 through a series of workshops in the School. They cover a range of topics, including: 'Articulating Perspectives', 'Making the Curriculum More Diverse', 'Accessibility', and 'Communicating Expectations'. All new module proposals are asked to demonstrate how they have taken these guidelines into account, with the proposals scrutinised by a Committee composed of staff and students.

Queen Mary has a central Disability and Dyslexia Service (DDS) that offers support for all students with disabilities, specific learning difficulties and mental health issues. The DDS supports all Queen Mary students: full-time, part-time, undergraduate, postgraduate, UK and international at all campuses and all sites.

Programme Title: BA (Hons) Modern and Contemporary History

Students can access advice, guidance and support in the following areas:

- Finding out if you have a specific learning difficulty like dyslexia
- Applying for funding through the Disabled Students' Allowance (DSA)
- Arranging DSA assessments of need
- Special arrangements in examinations
- Accessing loaned equipment (e.g. digital recorders)
- Specialist one-to-one "study skills" tuition
- Ensuring access to course materials in alternative formats (e.g. Braille)
- Providing educational support workers (e.g. note-takers, readers, library assistants)
- Mentoring support for students with mental health issues and conditions on the autistic spectrum.

Links with employers, placement opportunities and transferable skills

History has a reputation as a serious and respected discipline, which develops an understanding of the modern world and valuable research, analytical and communication skills, making history graduates very attractive to employers. Modern historians' skills make them attractive to employers in a wide range of fields, including management in commerce or industry, the civil service and local government, law, accounting, banking, publishing, journalism and research for TV or political organisations. Queen Mary History graduates often find employment in areas such as business, education, finance, government and the media. Others continue their studies at postgraduate level, or pursue more directly related careers as academic historians, librarians, archivists or history teachers. Graduates have found work for organisations as diverse as BP, BBC, Mansion House Consulting and Investec.

Graduates of the programme can expect to have developed:

communication skills, as students are challenged to express themselves in both speech and writing;

presentation skills, as students are asked to introduce seminars, make points clearly and effectively, maintain discussion, and field questions;

reading skills, using a range of approaches to tackle different kinds of texts;

analytical abilities, as students respond to a assess their underlying agendas and meanings;

writing abilities, through preparing a range of assignments (including reports, learning journals, and research essays);

research skills, locating, sifting and interpreting a range of sources (from printed books to electronic journals);

time management skills and the ability to work under pressure, as students organise and fulfill extensive reading commitments and written assessments;

team-working skills, as students participate with peers in seminars and group research presentations;

Every year the School sees a number of students progress to take higher degrees, both at Queen Mary and elsewhere.
